Do you really need a fence? You may need to build a fence to meet local government (city, town, state) housing rules and regulations. For instance, if you have a pool or pets, most often your local housing laws will require you to fence in the animals and the area around the pool. Perhaps also you may just want to enclose your home or land area for privacy or aesthetic reasons. For whatever reason you need a fence, building one can be affordable if you make it a do it yourself job. You can save so much money on labor cost alone. Also, if you build your fence DIY, you can put it up fast as you wont have to wait for contract workers to schedule you within their timeframe.

Design and installation will be the primary areas to learn when building your own home fence. Planning will need to include research on fence types and materials so that your fence design will look aesthetically beautiful as an accent to your entire landscape. In installing your fences, strong support is the key for building fences that will last for years to come.

This book will provide you with a step by step framework for creating a home fence. The guide will begin with initial planning and guide you through to the end product and maintenance of your new fence. You will learn specific tips and instructions on:
