

A Candid Reply to the Reverend Doctor Hemmenways Remarks on a Dissertation on the Scriptural Qualifications: For Admission and Access to the Christian Sacraments (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from A Candid Reply to the Reverend Doctor Hemmenways Remarks on a Dissertation on the Scriptural Qualifications: For Admission and Access to the Christian Sacraments Here is reason to believe, that religious disputes may be of great service to the cause of truth. Our Saviour, who declined all other controversies, frequently disputed upon religious subjects. The apostle Paul encountered the Athenian philosophers, and refuted their subtil objections against Christianity, by the force of fair reasoning. And it appears, from the history of the Church, that the pen of controversy has been successfully employed, from age to age, in defending and propagating the pure doctrines of the gospel. There is as much propriety in disputing far the fake of truth, as in going to war for the fake of liberty, going to law for the fake of justice, or taking physic for the fake of health.
