

With my Eternal Love: Letters to my Unborn Children

Dealing with the loss of a child and the opportunity to see their face directly and see them grow into their personal life is extremely difficult. These letters work through the thoughts and emotions one may experience from their first desire to have children to the grieving process of a pregnancy not brought to term. Though they are addressed to my own lost children, the purpose is to help the reader find either a voice for their own personal loss or to further understand the magnitude of loss for someone close who has lost a child.
