

Letters To Ben was inspired by the life of Randy Pausch who gave his now famous Last Lecture when he discovered he was dying of pancreatic cancer. His attempt to leave a lasting legacy for his children was something that any parent strives to do. Rather than waiting to end up in a situation similar or worse than Randys, Chris Lockwood took to writing an epic amount of short format wisdom that he could pass on to his two sons, Ben and Matt. This book was initially intended only for their eyes, seen as a way that could help them shortcut a lot of mistakes we all make growing up and lead a happier, more fulfilled life sooner than most. But as Chris really dug down into the creation of the book, he began to realize how much countless other people need the same ideas, inspiration and motivation to change their lives. So Letters To Ben grew to become a full fledged book thats worth of any philosopher, dreamer or epic life lovers shelf. Letters To Ben is the perfect book to pick up daily, read a small section and then go on with your day. It will provoke thought, inspiration, gratitude and with a little bit of luck, motivation to start living your ultimate life.
